Call for Authors

We are always pleased to hear from authors wishing to submit manuscripts or proposals for new publications. Our books cover a wide range of topics relevant to practising engineers, academics, researchers, students and managers in related fields internationally. We offer a complete professional service in publishing, including competitive royalties, excellent author support, a speedy and flexible production process including redrawing facilities, and a dynamic sales and marketing operation in the UK and in the USA. To contribute to the future, make your mark in your field, and return something to the profession, why not write for The Institution of Engineering and Technology? Please contact books@theiet.org for further information.

Journals

All subscription rates are inclusive of postage and delivery to subscribers. Airmail delivery is available for a supplementary charge. All journals are supplied on a prepaid subscription basis for a calendar year. We are happy to accept subscriptions at any time during the year; all issues published previously that year will be supplied. Cancellation after service has commenced will incur a cancellation charge. We are unable to accept cancellations when a subscription has been in force for more than four months. All claims for non-delivery should be made within four months of publication date. For full details of online services, pricing options, single/back issues and other information, please visit www.theiet.org/journals or email journals@theiet.org
